Farm Bureau Encompasses All of Agriculture

Because Farm Bureau is a general agricultural organization, we have members who grow all of Oregon's 250+ commodities, from nursery stock to cattle, marionberries to hazelnuts, wheat to grass seed. Our philosophy is that agriculture is strongest when united and speaking with one voice in the public and political arenas.

In this issue, you'll meet a few Farm Bureau leaders from different parts of the state who grow completely different crops.

On p. 6, learn about OFB members Katie and Ryan Glaser, who specialize in grass seed and more recently mushrooms. Read more about their journey and their farm in Lebanon.

John Zielinski, p. 2, grows pears, apples, hazelnuts, and peaches. He is the current 3rd VP of OFB, a past county VP and President, AFBF Information Advisory Committee member, and State Board.

Devon Wells, p. 4, is president of Hood River County Farm Bureau and grows pears, apples, peaches, nectarines, plums, and cherries. Plus, U-Pick strawberries, pumpkins, and herbs.

While they come from different backgrounds, all share a passion for protecting and promoting Oregon agriculture, a belief in Farm Bureau, and its work in keeping agriculture viable and sustainable. Furthermore, they've all expressed gratitude for the personal gains they've made while being involved in this organization.

You'll see the vast diversity of agriculture in the pages of the Oregon's Bounty Farm Stand Guide starting on p. 19. This is a listing of nearly 300 family farms and ranches who sell all manner of products directly to the public via farm stands, u-picks, on-farm events, and farmers markets.

Browse these pages to find out where to buy seasonal fruits, vegetables, flowers, nuts, meat, cheese, foliage, and more directly from Farm Bureau members. Or search the Oregon's Bounty online database at OregonFB.org/oregonsbounty for specific ag products.

Farmer Spotlight

John Zielinski, 3rd Vice President of Oregon Farm Bureau

When did you join Farm Bureau?

I joined Marion County Farm Bureau in 1996. I was working on an ag issue concerning farm direct marketing and changing the administrative rules. I was informed that I needed to have OFB on board to accomplish any rule changes and then I saw how beneficial FB is.

What generation of farmer are you?

I am 4th generation and my daughter Claire, who is in YF&R, is 5th generation.

What do you grow?

We grow pears, apples, hazelnuts, and peaches.

Farm Bureau credentials?

I have been a county VP and President, AFBF Information Advisory Committee member, State Board, and currently 3rd VP of OFB.

Goals for your work as 3rd VP of Oregon Farm Bureau?

My goal is to increase involvement in the committees and help the committee chairs to run efficient meetings. I am also working to clarify how the committees are classified.

Biggest challenges facing your farm right now?

Farm labor, low commodity prices, and overtime regulations.

What's happening on your farm this spring?

We are currently pruning our fruit trees, and beginning to apply delayed dormant sprays.

Why is Farm Bureau important?

County, State and American Farm Bureaus are important to provide a unified voice for agriculture. Farmers are such a small percentage of the population that we need to be united to educate and inform the people who make laws, regulate us, and the consumers who buy our products.

What have you gained personally from being a Farm Bureau member?

I have been able to meet with legislators to help tell the ag story, and I have made many friends.

What do you love about farming?

The seasonality, the feel of accomplishment in bringing in a crop, and the sunrise or sunset when viewed from the orchards. Since we also have a Farm Direct operation, I love teaching people about where their food comes from, especially the children who visit our farm. Watching the smile on a child's face when they get to pick an apple or pet a sheep is so rewarding.

Farmer Spotlight

Devon Wells, President of Hood River County Farm Bureau

When did you join Farm Bureau?

I became the member listed for our family farm 5 years ago. My family has been a member of the Farm Bureau for 3 generations now.

What generation of farmer are you?

I am the 5th generation of landowners and orchardists in Hood River. Our business was organized in 1901. The 6th generation is currently working on the farm and the 7th generation just celebrated her 1st birthday!

What do you grow?

We grow 8 varieties of pears, 10 varieties of apples, 10 varieties of peaches, 3 varieties of nectarines, 3 varieties of plums, and 6 varieties of cherries. Plus, U-Pick strawberries, pumpkins, and herbs.

Farm Bureau credentials? Hood River County Farm Bureau President 2020-present.

Biggest challenges facing your farm right now?

Labor, new regulations, and growth. We are in a very labor intensive ag sector, with all work on the trees being done by hand (pruning, thinning, harvesting). The changing landscape of employee regulations and requirement, coupled with the change in employee work habits is a difficult focus daily. In addition to that issue, added regulation of the ag industry in general, plus crop specific regulations create a moving target for success.

Lastly, being a 5th generation farm operator requires me to look at things differently and find new ways to grow our operation, vertically integrate, and find efficiencies that haven't been looked at in the past.

What's happening on your farm this spring?

As far as the crop goes, we will finish pruning the trees in March and move into pest control and soil management, plus protection of the fruit from frost on cold nights. We will be planting more cherries this year and adding new operations to our fruit stand, Pearl's Place, for the summer, as well as the addition of a new piece of land we are farming for a family member. Cherry harvest begins in June, as well as Pearl's opening; followed by peach harvest all summer, and pear/apple harvest starting in September.

Why is Farm Bureau important?

The Farm Bureau provides such a valuable tool when it comes to all things business management. Whether it's human resource assistance through the FEELDS program, educational sessions on policies and rulemaking, or farm business advocacy at the State and Federal legislative bodies, the Oregon Farm Bureau is an amazing advocate for farming operations in the state. The relationships of members and the opportunity to connect with others in similar situations adds to the importance of member involvement, both locally and statewide.

STARTING ANEW: FROM GRASS SEED TO A BRAND NEW JOURNEY CULTIVATING MUSHROOMS

BY MIA PEDERSEN

regon Farm Bureau members Ryan and Katie Glaser do not shy away from a challenge. While there have been many in their life and in agriculture, one of the most significant challenges was when they realized something needed to change which led them to their journey of growing mushrooms.

Ryan & Katie's Story

Ryan's home and farm is the original homestead of the E.L. and Luise Glaser Family. They were Ryan's great, great grandparents who originally bought 258 acres with $200 down and settled along Sand Ridge Road right outside of Lebanon in the spring of 1895, making Ryan the 5th generation after 128 years. They originally raised wheat and it has been said they were the first in the area to obtain hives of honey bees.

Ryan worked closely with his dad and other family members on the farm for much of his life until 2006 when his father passed away. After this, Ryan took over most of the responsibilities his father had, which included keeping the books and assisting with the day-to-day operations of the farm.

Like most farming families, Katie's family comes from a long line of farmers. Katie's father, Stan Boshart, was one of six kids. Through the years it was quickly realized that the family farm was not big enough to support all family members. Katie's dad and his brother Gene decided then to break off from the family farm and starting Boshart Trucking.

Eventually her dad and mom, Lori, bought Gene out of the trucking business, making them the sole owners. In 1993 they started a bailing company, and like most farm kids, Katie helped with harvest in the summer. Today, Katie's parents farm grass seed and hazelnuts.

Starting Anew

Early in their marriage, Ryan and Katie both felt things needed to change on the farm. Because of smart investments from previous generations, the farm had done very well. However they realized, like others have, that times were changing and they would need to adapt.

Around 2016 they came to the difficult realization that they would need to speak to Ryan's uncle and cousin about separating from the farm.

"Going through the farm split and buyout was incredibly difficult for everyone involved. But we couldn't see a successful path forward with the way things were and decided we had to make a choice. Either buy the farm or walk away and try something else" says Ryan.

In November 2019 they finalized the transaction and split the farmland between families. They also purchased Sand Ridge Farms, which is where they conduct their day-to-day operations.

Journey into Mushroom Cultivation

Ryan and Katie knew in order to keep the farm sustainable they needed to expand into other areas. With her volunteer work in Oregon Women for Ag, OFB and diving into the political world, Katie felt strongly that she wanted to help bridge the divide between rural and urban life, which led her down the path of looking into agritourism.

"A good friend of mine put the mushroom idea in our head. We spent some time looking into what it would take to start a mushroom operation and if we thought it would be profitable. We found that there is a lot of research, studies, science and technology going into mushrooms and we feel that this is just the beginning of the mushroom industry. We believe mushrooms will play a much bigger role in the future. Besides their culinary value, studies are finding many medicinal benefits with mushroom consumption as well" says Katie.

Along with growing mushrooms, their dream is to one day open up their farm for year-round agritourism. "I believe some of the divide between rural and urban Oregon is that we don't understand each other. I love the idea of having a 128 year old conventional grass seed farm mixed with a mushroom farm while including some fun attractions on top of that. We can create a fun atmosphere for all while being able to share our story and educate consumers about agriculture" says Katie.

Opening Dolina Farms

The word Dolina means "valley" in Polish, (the Glaser family can trace their heritage from Poland) and Ryan and Katie both wanted to incorporate that family history into their new farm. In November 2022 all the paperwork was finalized for Dolina Farms LLC, which includes the mushroom operation and the agritourism.

Mushroom Operation

One of the first things Ryan and Katie learned is that "growing mushrooms is very different from growing grass seed."

The process starts by creating the growing medium block for the mushrooms to grow on. They use oak sawdust and soybean hull as the growing medium. Once this block is created it is sterilized through a pressure cooker or autoclave. The block cools down overnight and the next day they inoculate the growing medium by putting the mushroom spores and inoculated grain spawn into the block. The varieties they currently grow then incubate anywhere from 10 days to 4 weeks depending on the type of mushroom. Once the spawn has spread throughout the whole block it's then time to move into the grow room. Within a few days pinning starts to occur - this is when you start to see the first signs of the mushrooms.

It takes between 7-14 days from when the block first moves into the grow room until it's ready to harvest. Currently they are growing Lions Mane, Pioppino, and multiple varieties of Oyster mushrooms. These mushrooms are great for culinary purposes with their rich flavor profiles.

As Dolina Farms expands, it plans to grow other varieties that are more known for their medicinal properties like Turkey Tail, Reishi, Enoki, and more. The new varieties will open up the door to create powder blends and tinctures that are more focused on medicinal uses versus culinary.

The fresh mushrooms that don't sell get dehydrated. This opens up another market for Dolina Farms. After a mushroom harvest, the mushroom blocks are broken down and are then used in their garden. They plan to start selling mushroom compost in the near future. "Our goal is to capitalize where we can and limit our waste to the best of our abilities" says Ryan.

In 2022, Katie and her husband Ryan opened Dolina Farms, which specializes in multiple varieties of mushrooms.

Katie and Ryan employ three full-time workers between Sand Ridge Farms and Dolina Farms.

Volunteer Work & Politics

The value and importance of volunteer work does not go unnoticed by Ryan and Katie.

Both spend many hours going to meetings, helping with events, hosting teachers through Summer Ag Institute, giving oral or written testimony at the Oregon Legislature, and more. Ryan has served on the Oregon Ryegrass Growers Association and Katie became involved with Oregon Women for Ag. After they were married they both became involved in Oregon Aglink and with Farm Bureau at the county and state level.

Katie was part of the REAL Oregon Agricultural and Natural Resource Leadership Program, which ignited a spark in her to run for the state legislature. She loved the experience and it made her want to be more involved in having agriculture's voice heard throughtout political arenas.

Looking to the Future

The Glaser family is large and has a presence all over the Willamette Valley. Many aunts, uncles, and cousins have their own farms and are active members of the community. Ryan and Katie said they feel a responsibility to keep the farm viable and to do big things with it. In their view, the best way to accomplish this is to share what they have with anyone who is interested. "This farm started with nothing and was built into something great over several generations. We want to carry on this legacy and continue into the future" says Ryan.

Dolina Farms is located at 31880 Sand Ridge Rd, Lebanon 97355. The farm stand offers self-serve mushrooms and is open 8:30-6:30 Tuesday through Saturday. Make sure to check out their Facebook page or dolinafarms.com for farm updates, and to find out which farmers' markets they are selling at.

Oregon's Farm Dogs Teach Others About Agriculture

Launching in 2023!

The Oregon Agricultural Education Foundation is expanding the Oregon Farm Dog project to include a fundraising social event. The OAEF Farm Dog Invitational will feature business and community leaders bringing their dogs to experience a farm obstacle course.

Together we'll celebrate our dedicated canine companions who make long days easier and inspire us to have fun and work harder. Sharing stories about our beloved dogs and the important role they play on our farms and ranches or in our homes can connect us as dog lovers throughout Oregon.

What to Expect

Obstacles such as passing through a gate, reacting to farm noises, jumping on a hay bale, approaching farm animals, and walking over unusual surfaces will be set up and judged. These standard farm experiences will be new to non-farm dogs and their owners. The 2023 Oregon Farm Dog of the Year will be announced at the end of the OAEF Farm Dog Invitational event.

Farm Dog of the Year Selection

OAEF's judges will review all applications from OFB members that were received by April 1st. Each application required answers about the dog's responsibilities and demeanor along with a photograph of the dog on the farm. Judges use the application information to select the canine companions who make a significant impact on the operations of the farm.

Oregon's First Farm Dog of the Year

The Foundation's Work

For more than 30 years, the OAEF has delivered high-impact educational programs to increase agricultural knowledge and understanding for all Oregonians. Donations help connect farm leaders, inspire future leaders, and honor Oregon's rich agricultural heritage.

So, What's Farm Bureau?

As a Farm Bureau member, you have access to many money saving benefit programs. See p. 22, visit OregonFB.org, or call us at 503.399.1701 to learn more.

Whether you're a Farm Bureau associate member through COUNTRY Financial, or a farmer or rancher who joined as a voting or supporting member to help keep Oregon agriculture vital and viable, OFB greatly appreciates your membership.

Established at the county level in 1919 and the state level in 1932, Farm Bureau is a grassroots, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization representing the depth and breadth of Oregon's diverse agricultural community.

Farm Bureau gives our farmer and rancher members a united voice in the public, political, regulatory, and legal arenas. We help these families stay in business and keep doing the job they love.

OFB also offers programs like Young Farmers & Ranchers (YF&R), Century Farm & Ranch, Summer Ag Institute (SAI), scholarships, ag education outreach, women's leadership opportunities, and ag health and safety efforts.

Many of these programs are spearheaded by FB volunteers.

COUNTRY Financial & Farm Bureau

To understand the partnership between Farm Bureau and COUNTRY Financial, you have to go all the way back to the early 20th century. That's when groups of farmers began organizing to promote agriculture and share ideas to improve their methods for raising healthy, high-quality crops, and animals.

One of the most pressing needs of America's ag community in the early 1900s was insurance protection. Working in agriculture involved many hazards that were difficult or impossible to insure. State Farm Bureaus around the country, including Oregon, established insurance companies to serve their members.

In 1945, the COUNTRY insurance company was established in Illinois, and by the 1960s it began to expand into other states. In 1986, COUNTRY purchased the Northwest Farm Bureau Insurance Company from the Oregon, Washington, and Nevada Farm Bureaus.

Today, Farm Bureau's relationship with COUNTRY Financial continues in the form of an exclusive endorsement of COUNTRY's offerings. While providing these much needed services, COUNTRY also supports the Young Farmers & Ranchers program and contributes in many ways to Farm Bureau activities throughout the year.

The AFBF board of directors and non-board member state Farm Bureau presidents met in Phoenix, Arizona this spring. The board and state presidents also traveled to Yuma for farm tours as well as a tour of the border crossing area. During the tours, many issues were discussed including border security, immigration reform, water availability & infrastructure, food safety rules, general regulatory impacts and much more.

OFB had the pleasure of welcoming Congresswoman Chavez-DeRemer to discuss the federal Farm Bill, and meet with Farm Bureau committee members.

OFB and YF&R sent a group of members to participate in this year's Oregon FFA State Convention in Redmond.

OFB Executive Director Greg Addington was recognized for being the Founding REAL Oregon Program Coordinator. Greg was instrumental in planning the leadership program, coordinating it, and leading its first 5 classes. He laid the foundation that will allow the program to continue being successful and benefiting the agriculture community well into the future. Congratulations Greg!

And that's a wrap for our board of directors first quarterly meeting for 2023! Thank you for joining us and we look forward to seeing you all in May!

A place for young farmers

F&R — Young Farmers & Ranchers — is a group within Farm Bureau specifically for member between the ages of 16 and 35.

YF&R is a great way to connect with peers working in, or interested in, Oregon agriculture. It's a natural progression from FFA and an excellent introduction to Farm Bureau. There is a thriving YF&R collegiate chapter at Oregon State University. Find your community in agriculture!

Why join YF&R?

YF&R Leadership Conference: The YF&R Leadership Conference is an event for young Farm Bureau members interested in improving their leadership and communication skills, learning about issues impacting agriculture, gaining strategies from industry experts, and making new friends.

Have Fun! From agriculture tours to ski trips, barbecues to karaoke, YF&R members always have lots of fun. Build true friendships with peers who also care about agriculture.

Travel: Over the years, YF&R members have attended national conferences, social events, and tours across the state and beyond. YF&R events have brought members to Portland, Louisville, Austin, Reno, and Nashville.

Protect & Promote Oregon Agriculture: Learn how the legislature impacts Oregon's ag community and find out how you can give agriculture a voice.

Part of being a successful farmer or rancher means speaking up and getting involved as laws are made so agriculture can remain a viable and sustainable profession.

Compete: Put your communication and farm management skills to the test through YF&R's three competitions: the Discussion Meet, Achievement Award, and Excellence in Agriculture Award.

Inspire Others: YF&R supports next-generation farmers and ranchers by offering opportunities to FFA members and college students.

Share Your Family's Story

Oregon Century Farm & Ranch Program Seeking Applications for 2023 Century and Sesquicentennial Awards

If you've ever wondered about the sustainability of Oregon agriculture, you can rest assured that no other industry boasts more longevity, multigenerational family ownership, and commitment to environmental stewardship. If fact, farmers and ranchers have worked the land here since before 1859, the year Oregon achieved statehood.

OFB's Century Farm & Ranch
Program, administered through the Oregon Agricultural Education Foundation, was created to honor these hard-working families who are to thank for Oregon agriculture's rich heritage. Since the program's start in 1958, 1,252 Century farm and ranches have been recognized for remaining operational and within the same family for at least 100 years. 51 farms have earned sesquicentennial status for reaching the 150 year mark.

Applications are now being accepted for the 2023 Oregon Century Farm & Ranch Program. The application deadline is May 1, 2023. Families throughout Oregon who have continuously farmed portions of their family acreage for the past 100 or 150 years are invited to apply.

Members of the Application Review Committee review each application against the qualifications, which include continuous family operation of the farm or ranch, a gross income from farm use of no less than $1,000 per year for at least three years out of five prior to application, and family members must live on or actively manage the farm or ranch activities. Application documentation may include photos, original deeds, personal stories, or other historic records. These records help support Oregon's agricultural history by providing valuable information about settlement patterns and statistics on livestock and crop cycles. All documents are archived for public access.

"There are so many interesting stories of Oregon families who have built their lives in agriculture and benefited all of us in the process. It's fascinating to read through the family narratives" said Andrèa Kuenzi, Century Farm & Ranch Program director.

Summer Ag Institute

TEACHING TEACHERS
ABOUT AGRICULTURE

or over thirty years the Summer Ag Institute (SAI) has offered an immersive summer educational program. Teachers enroll to learn about agriculture and how to enhance their classroom lessons. But the full experience often leaves them with a deeper understanding of the industry and connection to Oregon's producers.

A recent participant had this to say about the program - "it's amazing how they all do their jobs, and how incredible they are to their communities, environment, and employees. Understanding and learning about the demands placed on farmers, and the farming community is so important."

SAI runs smoothly because of a strong team. Committee volunteers raise funds, recruit teachers, and organize the week. The Oregon Agricultural Education Foundation is the nonprofit administrative office.

Photos Sought for 2024 Calendar

arm Bureau welcomes photographers to submit their best images of Oregon agriculture for possible inclusion in the 2024 Oregon's Bounty Calendar!

This calendar celebrates all aspects of Oregon agriculture: the products, people, production, enjoyment, landscape, and anything that depicts the beauty, technology, culture, appreciation, or tradition of family farming and ranching in this great state.

Learn more and see previous Oregon's Bounty Calendars at OregonFB.org/calendar

- Photos must involve farming or ranching in Oregon.
- Photos must be taken in a horizontal format to fit a calendar layout.
- Selected images MUST be available in high-resolution, 300 dpi at a size of at least 11" x 8.5"; otherwise they will be too grainy to enlarge.
- Digital images must be submitted in .jpg format.
- Photos with people may require a signed photo release. Please don't send photos of people you don't know.
- There's no limit to the number of photos you can submit.
- You don't have to be a Farm Bureau member to participate.

Submit your images in one of two ways:

- Email your digital photo(s) to mia@oregonfb.org
- Mail a thumb drive, CD, or prints to

Mia Pedersen Oregon Farm Bureau 1320 Capitol St. NE Suite 200 Salem, OR 97301.

Include with your submission:

- Your name, address, phone number, and email address.
